

I have been at C.T since my second semester of my freshman year. I am now a senior and supposed to graduate next month. Since I have been going to C.T my high school years have gone by REALLY fast. Way faster than I thought it would go. I am glad to be graduating finally. I think C.T is a really good school for people like me that just don't really like all the drama or being around a big group of all kinds of different people. You cant get into a fight here at C.T because you will get kicked out. Fights have rarely happened here at C.T. For the most part, mostly everyone here gets along with everyone.

It's a pretty kick back school. What I liked the most is how you just come in do your work for the four hours and you get to leave. If you're behind on credits you are required to stay longer than four hours. You pretty much work independent all the time, if you need help with something, your teacher would be more than glad to help you. You can't just get away with anything you want though, there are consequences here. I like how if you get into trouble or anything you get labor hours. It teaches the kids to not get in trouble and do stupid things. Sometimes labor hours can be good for some students to get out of class and away from people if you need alone time. Overall I am really glad I came to C.T and didn't finish my high school years at Big Bear High. C.T is a great school for people that belong here.
